1974 Review

Harvard St. George
School
Chicago, Illinois

Mrs. Tyskling

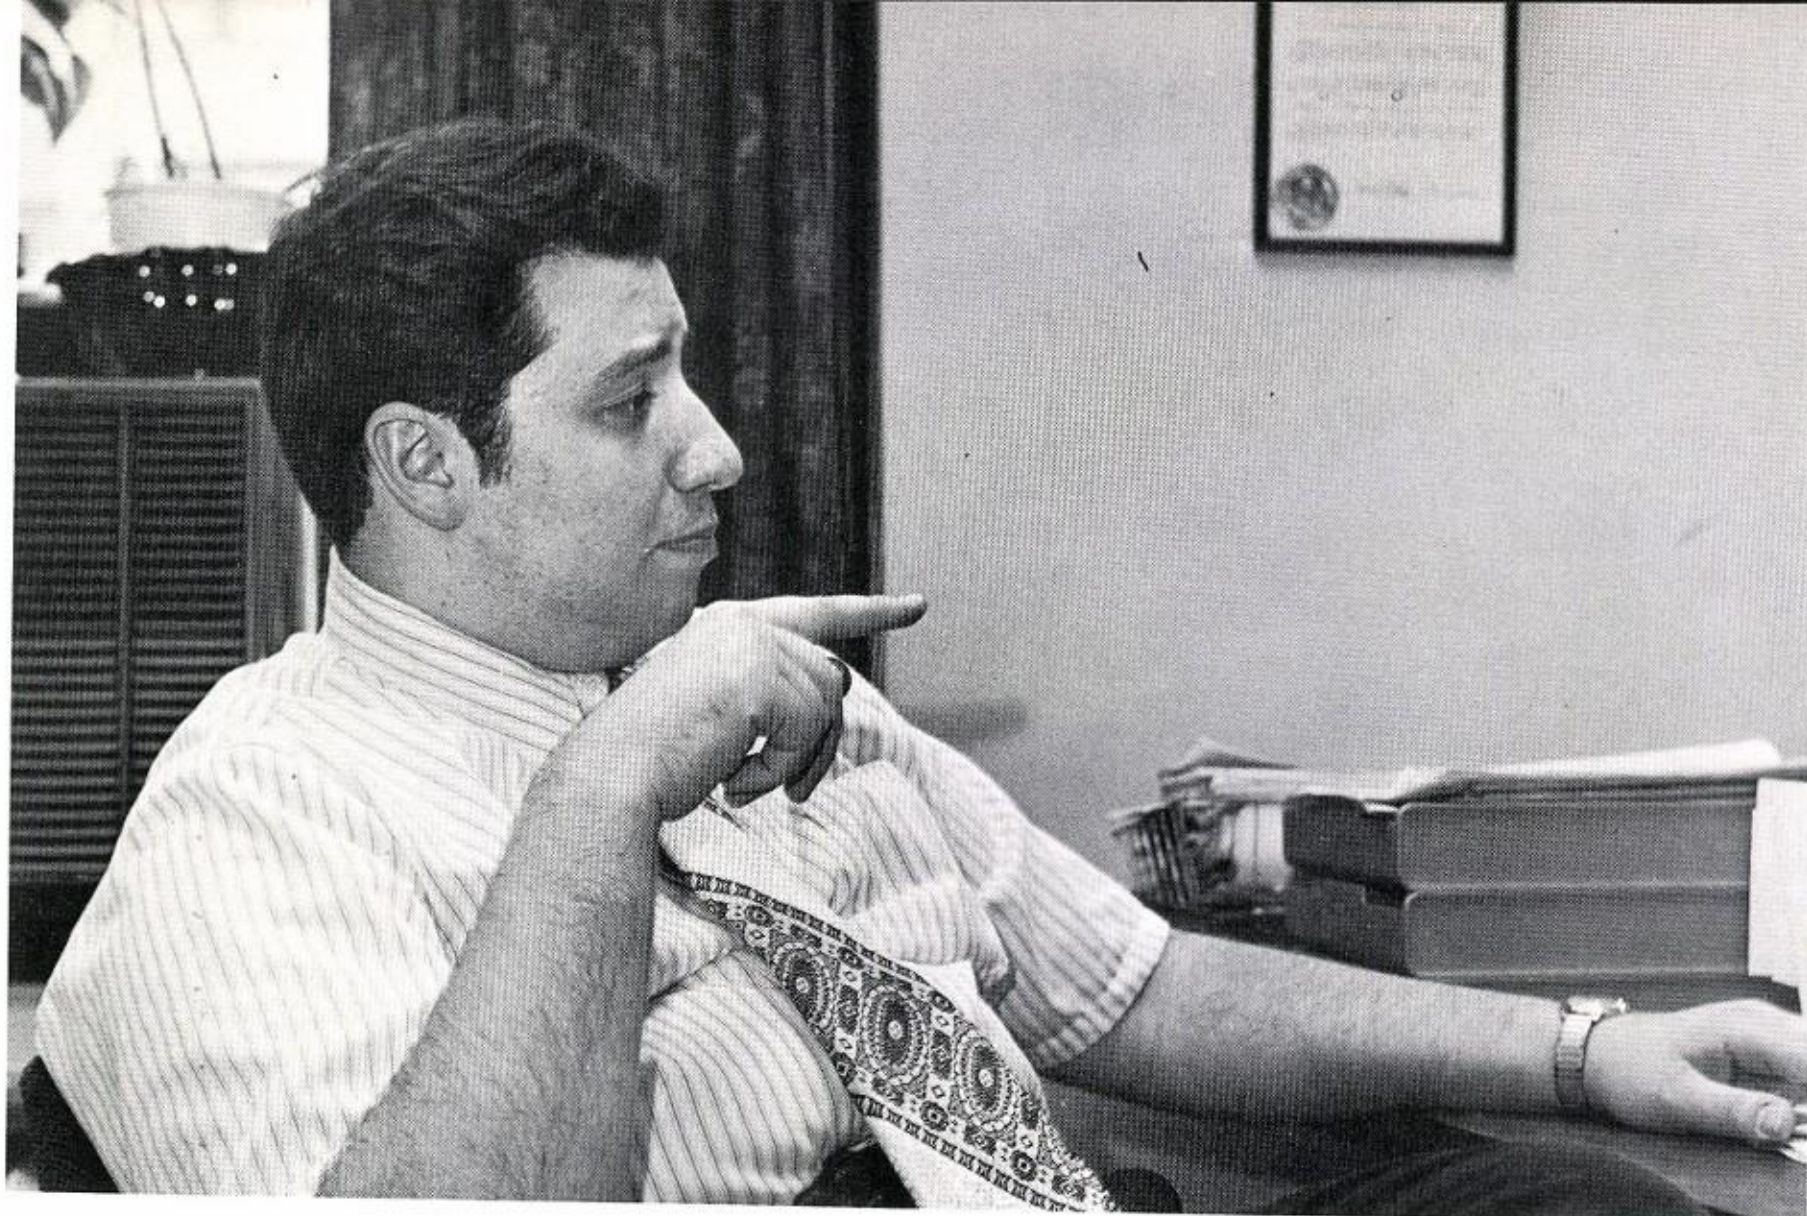

This year is Mrs. Martin Tyskling's fortieth year with the school - forty years of striving for an even better learning environment.

It all began in 1933 when she came to the old St. George School as a teacher, filled with idealism. She disliked the rigidity of the schools of that time, the forcing of students into predetermined "slots" and desired a more humane institution encouraging individualism. Becoming director in 1934, Mrs. Tyskling now worked to implement her ideals into the school.

The passing years presented many problems - contagions, war, prejudice, and lack of funds - but Mrs. Tyskling weathered them all and retained her idealism. She now looks forward to the realization of her hopes for a new building with adequate recreation facilities before her retirement. This would indeed be a fitting conclusion of her long career with Harvard St. George.

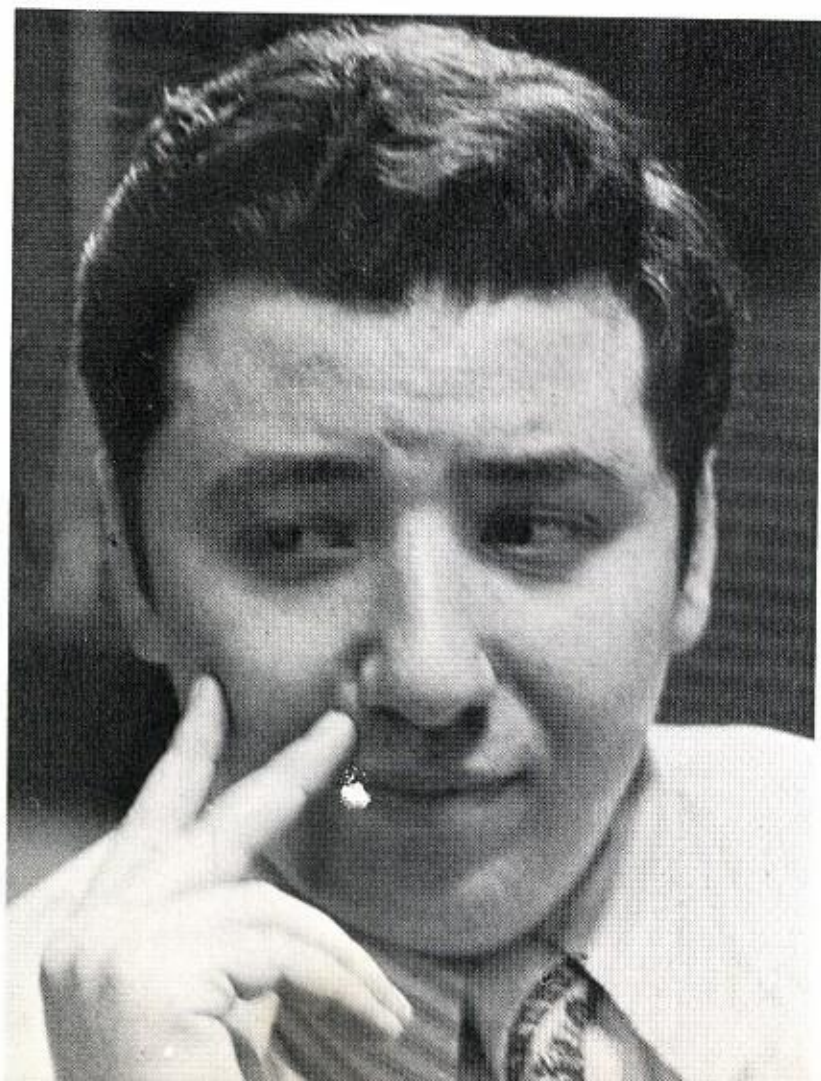

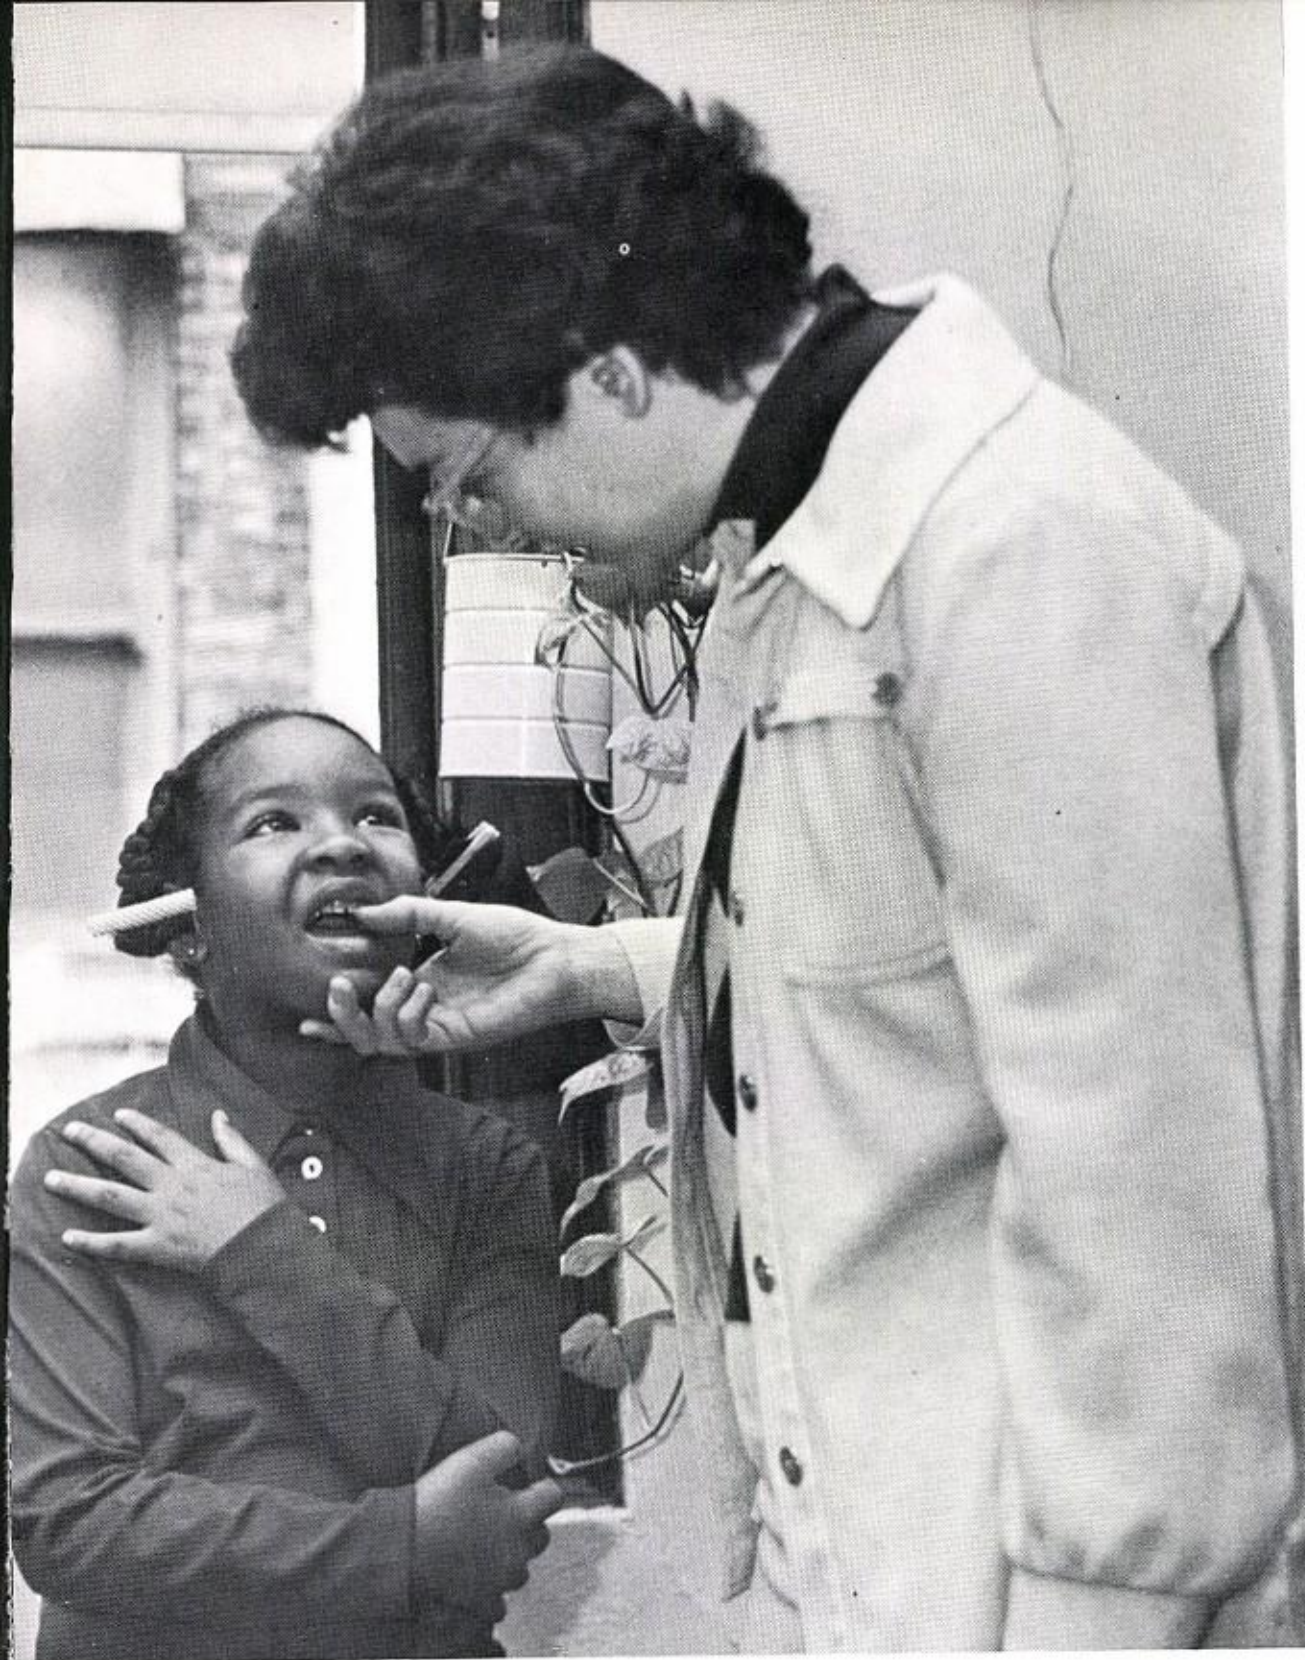

W. L. Volchenbourn

Mr. Volchenbourn is this year's new upper school principal and Latin / Greek teacher. However, he is not new to Harvard St. George. He has supplied the historical comment, "When I was here, boys wore ties and jackets; girls wore dresses and suits." This is in reference to the period of 1964-'65 when he taught Latin at Harvard. During this time he was also working on his M.A. at Loyola University, majoring in philosophy and the classics.

Mr. Volchenbourn left Harvard the following year to teach at the University of Iowa and the University of Minnesota. In 1970, on a special program, he completed course work toward his Ph.D. at the University of Minnesota. From 1970 to 1973, Mr. Volchenbourn taught Latin, Greek, and English at Marist High School with school administration work at Loyola.

Born and raised in Chicago, Mr. Volchenbourn is interested in classical music, antiques, cane and rush seat weaving, and in reading Ancient Greek.

Mrs. Allen

Mrs. Allen, veteran of the old St. George School, is not only lower school principal, but also guidance supervisor this year. She has been with Harvard St. George since the 1962 merger of the two schools.

Mrs. Allen has received her Bachelor of Education degree and her Master's degree in guidance and counseling at Chicago State University. She has also taken administration courses at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Allen's spare time is spent sewing, reading, and gardening. Her daughter Lisa attends Harvard as did her sons, Brian and Shawn.

When you are old and gray and full of sleep,
And nodding by the fire, take down this book,
And slowly read, and dream of the soft look
Your eyes had once, and of their shadows deep.

Jack N. Brown

The time is now for my self-enforced social advancement. And with me, so shall humankind advance. Thus it is not within the bounds of reason to assume that much further contact with those with whom I have shared the past four years will be had. If disbanding was in my power, I would issue absolute denial. Yet in the microcosmic Earth lies much that must and shall be uncovered to provoke all Man's childhood's end. And in tandem science and humanity shall override the realm of unwrought things. I must be a part of that conquest - Planet III is not alone.

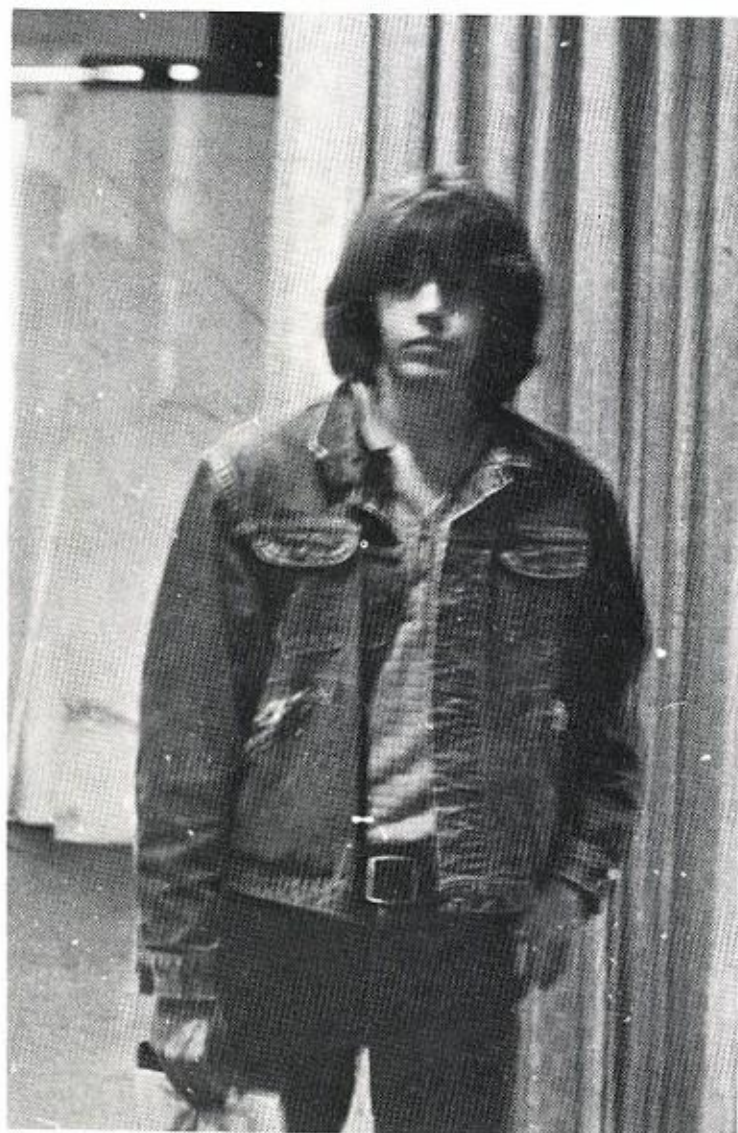

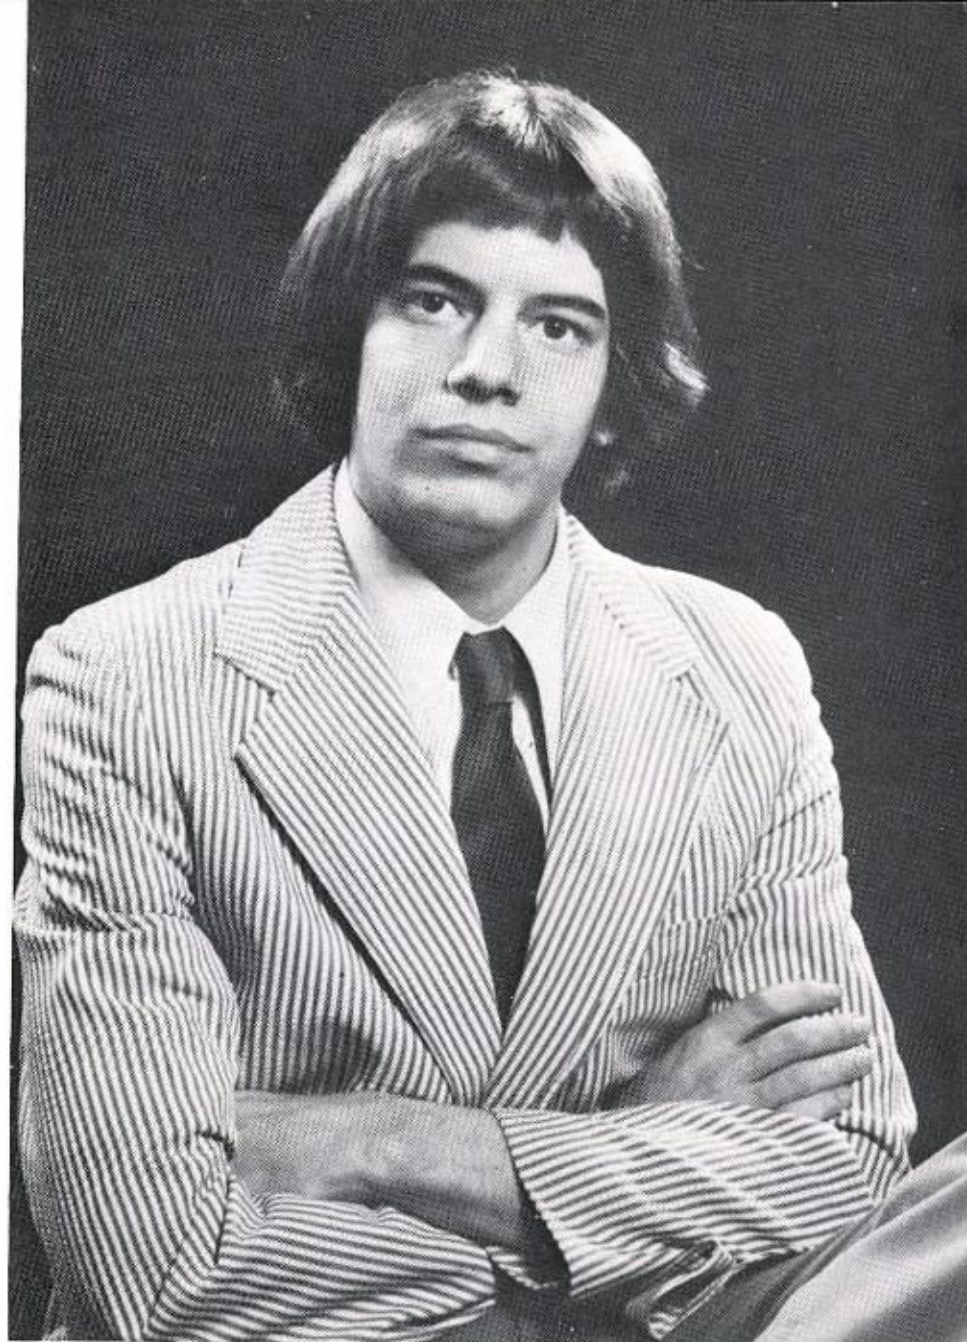

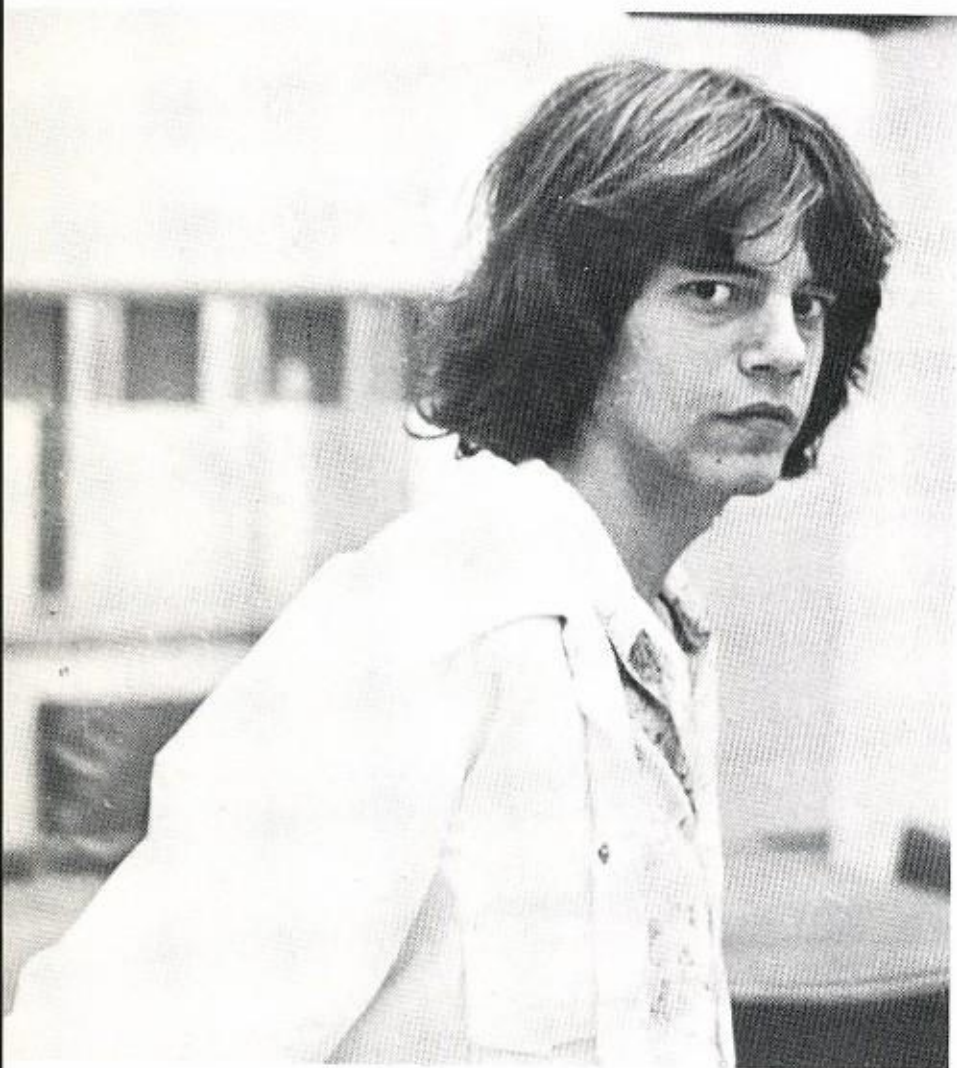

David Crosson

Remember when we were part of that precious few,

Everything it seems was so pure and true,
I guess we were just too young to understand,
The unsightly scars of death and war
And wrongs of man

To Whoever You Are:

We live in a time where the fate of our Spaceship Earth hangs in question. The very immediacy of this predicament so desperately requires us to consider and change our materialistic tendencies. If we can reveal our differences and share them, we can probably work together, but if we allow any barrier between us, well . . . to quote Jimi H.

If I don't see you no more on this world
I'll meet you up on the next one and don't be late

P.S. Let us meet and deeply converse
'cause we've got a world to save!

Educational Facilities Center

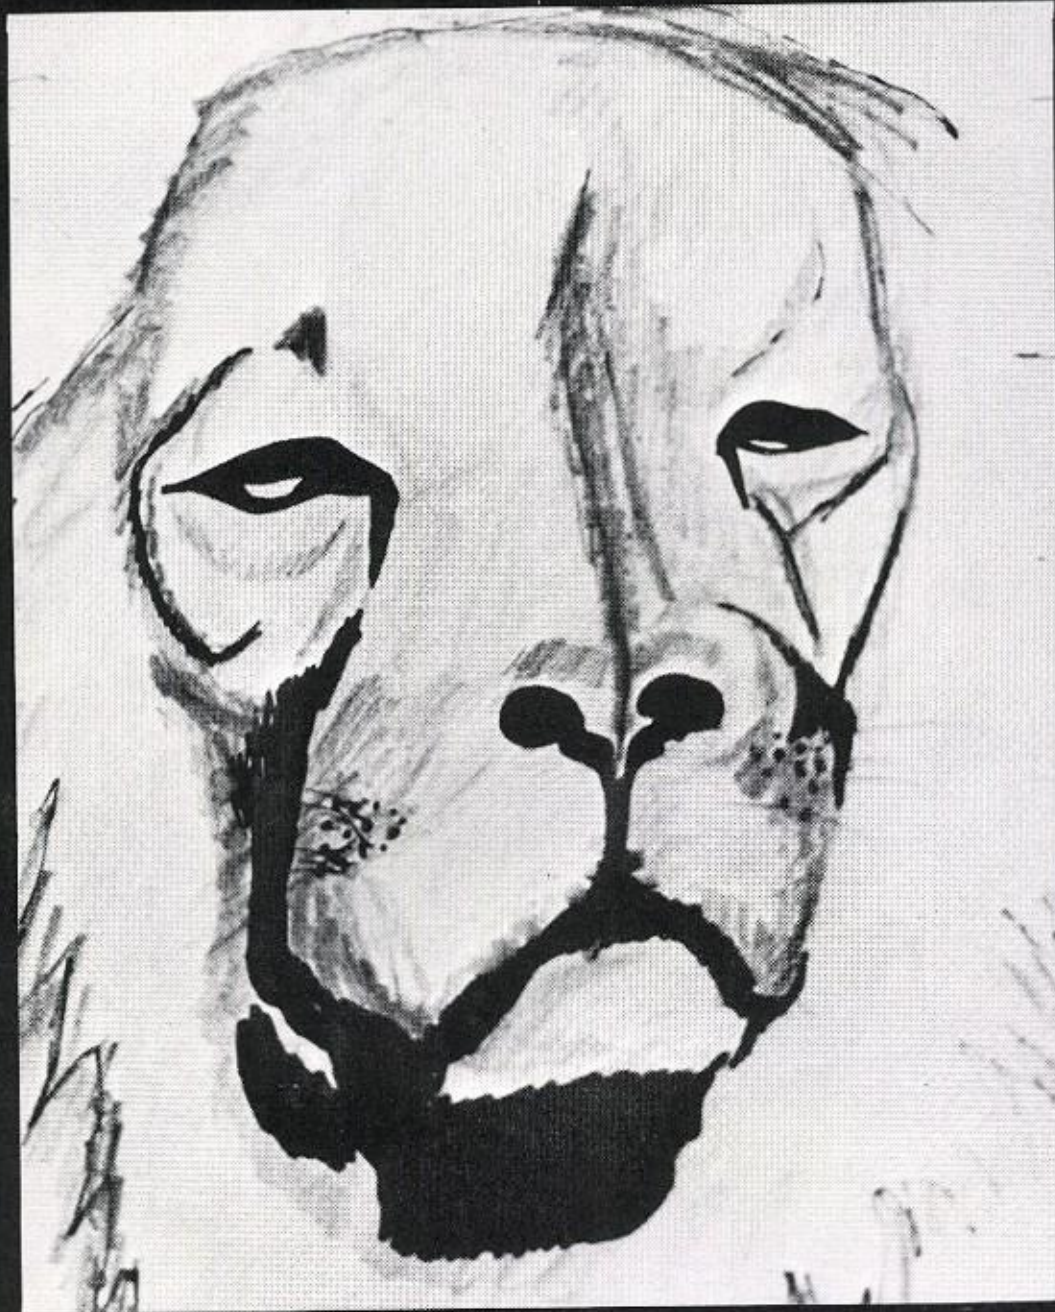

All seniors and selected juniors were involved in a special program this year at the Educational Facilities Center, located at 223 North Michigan Avenue. On Mondays and Tuesdays we attended all-day sessions at E.F.C., participating in various activities.

With our instructors, Ellen Sotloff and Irene Katz, we went on many field trips and later returned to E.F.C. for activities related to that trip. This enriching educational experience is a worthy addition to the educational program at Harvard St. George.

Beth Walsh, a junior, and Heidi Lerner and Laura Dilworth, both freshmen, are in a great brew of controversy this year. The reason for all the fuss? They have joined the high school baseball team, which the Independent School League has considered off limits for girls until now. Beth, Heidi, and Laura, however, are determined to stay on the team. The Board of Directors and most of the team support them. A special meeting has been scheduled by the Independent School League to decide the matter.

Henrietta McMillan

Dr. Henrietta McMillan, a member of the Harvard St. George Board of Directors since 1962, died on November 6, 1973.

Born in Herodsbury, Kentucky, she soon moved to Indianapolis and attended public schools there. Graduating from Butler University with honors, she later attended Radcliffe College where she received a Masters Degree in English. In 1942 she was awarded her doctorate in English and English Literature from the University of Chicago.

In addition to having been a Board member and chairman of the Board of Director's educational committee, she has also been the chairman of the English Department at the Louisville Municipal College, Atlanta University, and the Chicago Teachers College.

A valuable aid in curriculum problems and consultant over the years, the scholarship in her name, being considered by the Board of Directors, is indeed a fitting memorial.
